

FROM TRADITION TO INNOVATION

Vogemann Shipping Group chooses iVE.ONE as a technology provider for asset tokenization. Vogemann Group specializes in bulk cargo transport and was looking to finance environmentally friendly, efficient bulkers that consume 40% less fuel and reduce CO2 emissions. By using the iVE.ONE issuance and investment portals, they were able to offer tokens to global investors and simplify internal processes.

Challenges

Acquiring capital in traditional ways is often restricting, time-consuming process that involves third parties and a large amount of paperwork.

Illiquid assets and a small market

Low trust between banks and shipping industry

High in costs

Time consuming process

Solution

Asset tokenization has the potential to revolutionize the market. Powered by blockchain technology, tokenization opens the market to global players, mid-sized and smaller businesses in a compliant environment.

Costs are lower than traditional financing

Investor onboarding takes 10 min on average

Cutting the number of intermediaries by 50%

Integrated compliance and regulatory frameworks

About the Green Deal

50 million euro security token offering launches with the focus on sustainability

Vogemann Green Ship Tokens are digital securities in the form of uncertificated, subordinated, tokenised profit participation rights with a fixed annual return. The acquired capital is invested in new or modern used bulkers, which are employed, for example, to transport cereals, fertilisers, steel products, ore and coal and thus provide us with the raw materials we need on a daily basis. Through this countercyclical investment, Vogemann is exploiting historically low costs for new ships, which are now around 40% lower than they were in 2008, despite the fact that new ships are far superior technologically to older ones due to significant advances in innovation over the past ten years.
